About the Conference

This National Conference brings together academicians, researchers, industry experts, policymakers, and students to discuss the evolving role of commerce in achieving sustainable growth. With the shift from traditional financial accounting to sustainability-focused practices, the conference explores green and social accounting, sustainable finance, ESG, responsible business, technology-driven commerce, and the role of commerce in SDGs. It provides a platform to share innovations that balance profitability with environmental and social responsibility.

Why Attend?

- Gain insights into the future of sustainable commerce and green economy.
- Learn from experts in accounting, finance, ESG, technology, and policy.
- Present your research and receive academic recognition.
- Explore emerging trends like green finance, AI-based commerce, and circular economy.
- Network with academicians, industry leaders, researchers, and policymakers.
- Discover real-world case studies, innovations, and sustainability frameworks.
